VCLUNTARY MANSLAUGHTER Is the Verdict Found Against Kid Wanko at Parkersburg.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.
PARKERSBURG, W. Var. Oct. 17.—
The jury in the Kid Wanko case brought in a verdict of vonniary manslaughter this avening. Wanko was slaughter this evening. Wanko was charged with the murder of Felix Carr in a glove contest at Fries Park, last June. The evidence showed that there had been no malice, and that Carr's had been no mailce, and that Carr's physical condition was such that any physical exertion was likely to affect him fatally. There was much surprise and unfavorable comment when the verdict was made known, as the instructions of the court had been that unless malice was shown that the death was misadventure, to which no penalty was attached, the jury first to determine whether or not Wanko had been engaged in a lawful act. If he was found to have been engaged in an unlawful act, prize fighting being unlawful, and still no mailce being abown, then the accused was guilty of involuntary mansiaughter. The jury, attorthen the accused was guilty of involuntary manslaughter. The jury, attorneys, disinterested and interested, say, disregarded the instructions of the court, finding for voluntary manslaughter, which the statutes regulate with a penalty of from one to five years in the penitentiary. A motion was immediately made for a new trial.

The dead man formerly lived at Cincinnati. Wanko was taken to jail to await sentence, or hear the court pass on the motion for a new trial. The opinion is general among the legal fraternity that Judge Jackson will set the verdet aside.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 .- At the Broad NEW YORK, Oct. M.—At the Broad-way Athletic Club to-night, Dan Cres-don, of Australia, knocked out Pat Ready, of Washington, in the eighth round of what was to have been a twenty-five-round bont at 188 pounds. Ready made a fairly creditable show-ing, but was no match for the shifty Australian, and finally succumbed to Dan's superior cleverness. Creedon

The wind was east by south, and freshening by degrees as the judication of the start was the freshening by degrees as the judication of the start was the freshening by degrees as the judication of the start was the freshening by degrees as the judication of the start was the freshening by degrees as the judicing their bowsprits clear under, and doubtless putting to a severe test all their spars and rightne.

With half an eye any sallor man could see, looking at the yachts end on, from astern, that the Columbia was lying say from half to three-quarters of a point higher than the Shamrock, both apparently having their sheets trimmed alike on this peet tack. The fact that the Shamrock carfed no baby jib top sail was excellent evidence that her captains were afraid that if set it would pull her head off more yet, so it was kept down. While the Columbia's, setting perfectly on fits stay, must have helped that yacht, instead of retarding her in the windward work Fifteen minutes after the start the Columbia's position was fully two hundred yards dead to windward of the Shamrock the latter being at that time slightly forward of the Columbia's lee beam.

Captain Barr evidently meant to continue on the port tack to Liverpool, if necessary, until the Shamrock came about. That never happened, however, for as the breeze fresheed and both yachts began to put their lee rails down harder, it seemed, looking at the Shamrock's top mast from astern, as if it were sprung. At 11:24, with a crash that could be heard far off to leeward the Shamrock's top mast broke at a point close to the cap, and the great club top sail, with its long spars, went flying down to leeward of the main sail. Swinging its long tiller across her stern to port, Captain Horgart immediately put the Shamrock before the wind, and, finding that no one on board was hurt he gybed her and all hands began clearing away the were able to get the club top sail down on de

Cause of Accident.

It was found that the direct cause of the accident was the parting of the fore top must shroud in the "nip," that is the part of this steel wire rope rest-ing in the spreader which extends outwards from the hounds of the lower mast. The strands of the wire easily chafe and rust at that point, especially mast. The strands of the wire easily chafe and rust at that point, especially when the shroud is slackesed by reason of being to leeward.

That ended the race so far as the Shamrock was concerned. Columbiatook in her baby jib top sail, and continued on her course, tacking to starboard at 11:25, for it had been especially agreed a few days prior to the date set for the first race that in the event of an accident to either yacht, the uninjured yessel was to complete the course. This agreement was signed by Mr. Iselin and Sir Thomas Lipton. It was a great pity, of course, that such an accident should have occurred at such a time, when everything looked promising for a good triangular race.

At the time of the accident the Columbia was about an eighth of a mile to windward of the Shamrock.

The steam yacht Erin, with Sir Thomas Lipton and party on board, followed the Shamrock back to Sandy Hook, where she was towed by her tender. On her way in the Erin was passed by the steam yacht Cheida. Former Commodore E. C. Benedict was not the bridge. He halled Sir Thomas Lipton through the megaphone, and said:

"I am very sorry to see the accident.

said:
"I am very sorry to see the accident and I am also sorry that the race is to be won this way." We should all be more pleased to see the yachts sail it out." Sir Thomas thanked him, and passed on in his yacht.

For thirty-eight minutes and forty-five seconds the Columbia continued on the starboard tack. She had taken in her jib top sail soon after the saccident the starboard tack. She had taken in her jib top sall soon after the sceldent to the Shamrock, so as to relieve the top mast of any unnecessary strain. In twenty-minutes she went about again to starboard, and eleven minutes later she made her last tack for the first mark. In three minutes and a half she was up to the mark, and keeping off around it. After she eased sheets to starboard a No. 2 Jib top sall was broken out, and the white yacht began her ten mile reach for the second mark. Her official time at the turn was 12:89:25, showing that she had covered the distance to windward, about four-teen miles, in 1 hour, 39 minutes and 11 seconds.

Devoid of Isterest.

Devoid of Interest.

The reach to the second mark was devoid of interest, for the Columbia simply sailed her course of southwest half south straight as a die, only changing her fore stay sail for a ballooper at 1:18. She continued to carry her jib top sail until the second mark 163 411 was nearly reached. The second mark 167 2.04 was gybed around at 1:33:27. Her elapsed time for this leg was $3 minutes, 59 seconds—a. Iltile better than ten miles an hour.

Setting the balloon jib top sall a few minutes after rounding this mark, Columbia headed north, sorthweat, for the home mark. On this last leg of ten miles the wind lightened considerably, it took her 1 hour, 3 minutes and 50 seconds to cover the distance. The wind hauled a little to the westward as ahe approached the finish line, so the balloon jib top sail was taken in, and the small jib top sail sat. At 2:77:17 the Columbia crossed the finish line between the red lightship, and the committee boat, a winner of the second race of the international series. She was greeted by the usual steam whistles applause, and was soon after towed to her moorings in the Horzeshoe, back of Saudy Hook.

When the committee boat arrived in Sandy Hook hay the regarda committee found that the Shannock had been towed to Erie basin, where she is to be fitted with a new top mast and remeasured. The committee at once paid a visit to Sir Thomas Lipton and to Commodore Morgan, who was three with his steam yacht Corsair, also to Mr. Iselin. On the Columbia's deck a consultation was held, which resulted in the decision that the Shannock should be allowed one day to repair damages, and first the next race should be sailed on Thursday.

It will be fitteen miles to windward or leeward and return.
